

POSSIBLE REJECTION OF STATE DELEGATES

EMBARRASSING SITUATION DISCOVERED WHICH MAY MEAN REJECTION OF DELEGATES TO PARTY CONVENTIONS.

PROBLEM OF NEW LAW

Technicality in Re-apportionment Act Comes in Conflict With Provisions of Presidential Primary Law.

Primary Law.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Dec. 21.—Constitutional reform in political circles here over the discovery of a technicality in the re-apportionment act which threatens to open the way for the rejection of the Wisconsin delegates to national party conventions. Within the last few days members of the legislature have visited Madison to ascertain what course progressive reformers intend to take in the matter.

Problem Presented.
The law of 1909 provides that the names of delegates to a national convention shall be certified not less than fourteen days before the date of the presidential primary election. Under this statute the Wisconsin primary is to be held on Tuesday, April 2, 1912, and the latest day on which names may be submitted to the county clerks for the purpose of making up the ballots is March 19. Under this law it is therefore necessary to certify the names according to the old congressional districts, as outlined prior to the passage of the new apportionment act.

Might Be Irregular.
Sections 1 and 4 of Chapter 512, laws of 1907, provide for the selection of delegates according to congressional districts. The time when the vote for delegates will be held, the new apportionment act goes into effect. This rearranges the congressional districts and creates new districts. Thus delegates to the national conventions elected under the old law might be held to be irregular inasmuch as the new law went into effect before the vote actually was held. Moreover, the time for certifying the names to be voted upon at the April election is fourteen days before the election, and inasmuch as the new apportionment act, creating new congressional districts, goes into effect not only would such certification be illegal but it would be impossible of realization in time for the election.

Certified Lists.
Apparently the law is quite clear upon this matter. After providing specifically that two delegates shall be elected for each political party in each congressional district and four delegates at large at the April election, Chapter 483, laws of 1909, provides that "not less than fourteen nor more than twenty days before an election to fill any public office, the secretary of state shall transmit to each county clerk a certified list containing the names and political addresses of each person, or persons, or nomination papers for delegates to national conventions, who have been filed in his office and entitled to be voted for at such election."

Clearly this requires that the secretary of state certify the names of candidates according to the old apportionment act. The concluding section of the new apportionment act (chapter 512, sec. 7) provides: "This act shall take effect and be in force from and after April 1, 1912."

Embarrassing Situation.
Thus the old law under which the secretary of state would certify the names to the county clerks would not be in effect by the time the voters were given an opportunity to express their choice.

To escape this difficulty, one politician has suggested that in accordance with Chapter 512, laws of 1907, section 4, alternatives might be selected by the state central committee. But inasmuch as the national republican committee has decided that except in those states having primary elections, delegates to the national convention shall be selected by the caucus system, it appears quite plain that, as affecting the republicans, a delegation of alternatives would not be seated in conformity with the committee's ruling.

The situation is embarrassing particularly to the republicans, among whom the Taft and the La Follette men are fighting for delegates, and to the democrats, who are divided into Harrison and Wilson sympathizers.

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND CELEBRATES GOLDEN JUBILEE ORDINATION

No Elaborate Celebration Is Held in Defiance to Wishes of Archbishop, Given $100,000 By Priests.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 21.—Today marked the fiftieth anniversary of Archbishop Ireland's ordination, to the priesthood. In defiance to the expressed wish of the Archbishop no elaborate celebration of the golden jubilee was held, but the flood of congratulatory messages received during the day from archbishops, bishops, priests and prominent laymen throughout America reflected eloquent testimony of the love and respect and veneration in which the eminent St. Paul prelate is held by the people of all classes.

Archbishop Ireland passed his seventieth birthday anniversary on September 11 last, but both mentally and physically appears to be in the prime of life. His hair is iron gray, and there are furrows in his forehead, but the casual observer would not guess his age at more than 40.

"The priests of the diocese have presented Archbishop Ireland with a purse of $100,000 in celebration of his golden jubilee. That the whole of the least the greater part of this huge sum will be distributed in charity is regarded as a truth by all those who are familiar with the extreme generosity of the Archbishop."

A priest who acted as Archbishop Ireland's secretary for some years is authorized to state that the cardinal never turned a beggar from his door absolutely empty handed. He gives money to them with slight questioning, and seldom in amounts less than $1, the amount often being as high as $5 or $10. It is related of him that one evening in winter a forlorn looking man came to his door and asked for a quarter. Fumbling in his pockets for a minute the Archbishop brought up a $20 gold piece, and handing it to the man with a smile said: "That is a little more than you need tonight. Take it, and what you have to, and make the remainder the nucleus for the fortune which you have in your power to win."

Some years ago Archbishop Ireland was the possessor of the finest library in the Northwest. Shortly after the ill primary at McAlester got under way as a great educational institution it found itself much in need of books of reference. The matter having been called to the attention of the Archbishop, he without the slightest hesitation, ordered his own library to be sent to the institution. His order was obeyed, and with the exception of a dozen books, the whole valuable collection has ever since remained at the disposal of the students.

PRESIDENT ASSURED VOTES OF NEW YORK

TAFT CONFIDENT OF PRACTICALLY UNQUESTIONED SUPPORT OF NEW YORK DELEGATION.

COLONEL OUT OF RACE

Friends of Roosevelt Took Occasion to Insist That His Name Would Not Be Opposed to Taft in Convention.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Dec. 21.—President Taft went back to Washington early today with assurance that he would have practically unquestioned support from New York at the coming National Convention.

Colonel Roosevelt's friends seized the occasion of the President's visit to reiterate that his predecessor would not allow his name to be used in opposition to Taft.

Didn't See Colonel. The President returned without seeing Col. Roosevelt, nor receiving any call from him. A visit paid by Doctor Lyman Abbott started a report that he was an ambassador from his associate in magazine work but this Dr. Abbott promptly denied.

While Wm. Barnes Jr., the republican state chairman would not confirm the report that he and Mr. Taft settled their differences yesterday and that he had promised support of the state to the President said: "I don't believe it my action to urge upon the republican electorate a republican candidate. I assume that whoever is nominated will adhere to the principles that will be adopted."

Wants Clear Expression.
Mr. Barnes added that he would strive to have the republican state convention elect delegates to the national convention to adopt a declaration of principles that would be a clear and concise expression of republican doctrines.

"Which to my mind," he said, "implies resistance to political errors, half thought out ideas and dangerous demands."

It was reported that some of the New York republicans had recommended Mr. Sherman be retained on the ticket.

C. F. Brockhaus, Prop.

WAS NOT A CITIZEN WHEN AN ALDERMAN; TAKES OUT PAPERS

Carl F. Brockhaus Surprised to Find He Had Voted Illegally Since He Was Twenty-One Years Old.

Finding that he had voted illegally in the municipal, county, state and national elections since he was twenty-one years of age, and had also unlawfully held office in the city of Janesville as alderman from the third ward in 1906 and 1907, Carl F. Brockhaus hastened to correct his misapprehension when he called his naturalization papers at the office of the clerk of the circuit court yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Brockhaus came to this country from Germany with his father when he was a small boy. They settled in Milwaukee and his father became an American citizen, filing his first papers in 1868. When he attained his majority Mr. Brockhaus gave no attention to the matter of his citizenship, taking it for granted that he was a legal voter by reason of his long term of residence and by his father's action in taking out papers.

In fact, there was no one who gave the matter any attention until recently when the facts became known following a conversation with his mother and family. He at once took steps to rectify his condition and yesterday appeared before clerk of the court Jesse Earle and swore out his naturalization papers.

Under the terms of a recent enactment of congress it will not be necessary for him to take out his second papers. The law provides that in cases where it is clearly shown that the applicant has been a voter in good faith and where no fraud is detected, the first papers only are required. Frank Jackman witnessed the signature.

BLANKS ARE SENT TO CORPORATIONS

Collector of Internal Revenue for This District Is Sending Out Blanks To Get Reports.

Several local concerns have already received corporation blanks from F. L. Gilbert, collector of internal revenue for the second district of Wisconsin, who is now mulling over ten thousand blanks to corporations organized in his district. These blanks are being mailed in duplicate, one blank is to be returned and the other is to be retained for reference by the corporation. These returns should be filed with the collector as soon after January 1, as possible.

During the past year, twenty-five thousand corporations throughout the United States failed to file their returns, or before March 1, and incurred the specific penalty of from one thousand to ten thousand dollars. All corporations organized for profit and having a capital stock represented by shares, and all insurance companies, are subject to a tax equivalent to one per cent of the net income over five thousand dollars for each calendar year.

"A number of corporations not making a profit of five thousand dollars or over," said Collector Gilbert, "were of the opinion last year that they were not required to make the return for that very reason. However, all corporations are required to make the return, even if they sustain a loss during the year."

NORTHWESTERN MOVES TRAIN ORDER OFFICE

New Uses Building at South End of Yards For Block and Train Order Office.

Conductors of the Northwestern Division of the Northwestern railroad approach the change which has been made in the quarters of the train order office, bringing it nearer the lower end of the yards and saving them the trouble of walking the entire length of their trains to give the engineers their orders. All blocking of trains and order handling will be done now at the new office at the extreme south end of the yards and the two operators stationed there will work taking shifts of twelve hours apiece. This arrangement will be better and more convenient in all respects than the former way of having the order work done in the yardmaster's office at the north end of the yards.

TO FURNISH DINNERS FOR STORM VICTIMS

Baptist Sunday School Gives Excellent Entertainment While Donating Dinners for Cyclone Sufferers.

At the Baptist church last evening was given one of the most interesting and enjoyable Christmas entertainments which the Sunday school has ever given. The program consisted of a number of highly amusing skits given by the classes as they each presented some donation, either money or groceries, which would be used to furnish a Christmas dinner for those who lost their property in the recent cyclone. Music by the orchestra and primary department was interspersed with the class presentations and a number of stereopticon views of the wrecked homes and other damage of the storm were thrown upon the screen to illustrate the need of assistance.

About seven families were aided and supplies for several weeks were given, the distribution of which was finished this afternoon. The terrible effects of the cyclone were graphically illustrated by the slides and with the clear description of the pictures as they were shown, they furnished a very interesting part of the evening's program. Not only was a program furnished by the scholars and teachers which was enjoyed by a large number of friends, but the Christmas spirit, as carried out in its fullest meaning, added a great deal to the satisfaction and pleasure of the occasion.

Attention F. O. E. There will be a regular meeting of the Janesville Aero 724 F. O. E. this evening at eight o'clock in the Eagles Hall. A full attendance is desired as important business will be brought up.

PIRATE TWIRLER IN CITY FOR HOLIDAYS

W. F. Steele, Formerly of Janesville Now With Pittsburgh Ball Team, Greeting Old Friends.

W. F. Steele, who has been on the pitching staff of the Pittsburgh National baseball team for the past season, a former Janesville resident, is spending a week or more in this city greeting old-time friends and acquaintances.

Mr. Steele received his early training in the baseball art in this city when with other youngsters he played ball on Goose Island and invaded the territory of Monterey where skillful stone-throwing was necessary to hold one's own with the youths in that part of the city. It is about eighteen years since Mr. Steele left Janesville. He had his first experience in professional playing at Lynn, Mass., where he went from here, and subsequently he secured a berth with the Boston Americans. For several seasons he played with St. Paul in the American association, but later made his way back to the big leagues his position on the Pittsburgh pitching staff being his last position.

During the past season Mr. Steele has been successful winning seven out of nine games and standing eighth in the list of National league pitchers. He is signed up with the Pirates for the 1912 season. He will report for duty at Hot Springs, Pa., 15th. During the world's series Mr. Steele acted as special correspondent for one of the Pittsburgh papers.

Janesville has changed somewhat since he lived here but he is pleased to meet and with whom he can exchange holiday greetings.

BOTH JANESVILLE TEAMS WIN GAMES

Evansville Teams Lost Both Games Last Night—Intermediates Win 21 to 7; Seniors 17 to 12.

Past playing and fancy basket "shooting" on the part of the local Y. M. C. A. teams last night caused the downfall of both of the crack Evansville quintets to the tune of 21 to 7 for the Intermediates, and 17 to 12 for the Seniors. Both Janesville teams outplayed their opponents from the cut-off city and though the Intermediates were held to a score of 5 to 5 at the end of the first half they woke up in the second and came back so strong that they finished the game with a big lead. On the part of the Senior team considerable apprehension was felt by the onlookers when the visitors started out with a wild jump that lasted about five minutes against the steady opposition which it met and it was not long before everyone knew that their fears had been misplaced.

Although the Intermediate game was brisk throughout the first half there was not the usual glister in the Janesville boys and something was lacking in their playing. The visitors started out by making the first three points within a few minutes and the teams appeared pretty evenly matched. With the exception of Atwood the boys did not seem to get into it and the basket throwing was rather wild, but he secured two buckets and was in the game every minute from the very first.

Caplan, the Southerner, who had not been in the first half, reported for the second and proceeded to get in some good work at forward. The rest of the team seemed to wake up when the second whistle blew and the way in which they played around the Evansville bunch brought cheers from the spectators who had felt afraid for them after the playing of the first half. Southerner made four baskets during this half and with those of Cunningham succeeded in running up a good score while the guards saw to it that the other team did not get the ball near their end of the floor. The game ended with the score 21 to 7 in their favor.

When the Senior team lined up Evansville expected to meet with small opposition from an amateur organization which had played no games and would probably furnish them with a little practice. But the Seniors surprised them by some rapid work which made them begin at the very start to play a losing game. The coaching which the local team has received from Physical Director Hartwell for the last three weeks went a great way toward helping the boys play the game as it ought to be played and they did credit to the instruction.

Most started for the Janesville side and besides making the first basket of the game he was always in the game and his floor work was excellent. Benson of the visiting team played the star game for Evansville, playing five of the seven points for them during the first half. The end of the half found the score 9 to 7 in favor of Janesville.

Evansville fell even farther behind during the second half despite their desperate efforts to gain ground. Kopp at center played rings around Shorger, the big Evansville man of whom great things were expected, and with the exception of eleven fouls which he made Shorger did not have much effect on the score.

Things look bright for the two local teams and as each has a large schedule which is being improved as fast as possible by Physical Director Hartwell, great things are expected of them during the season. These games opened the season for both teams and if they live up to their record last night they are in for a most successful year. Return games will be played with both Evansville teams and should the Janesville "Y" take both of them it will make a total of five games taken from Evansville this year as the Juniors defeated an organization from the Cut-off city.

Last evening's scores and line-ups of both teams were shown by the score-keeper's book as follows:

three tomorrow and Saturday, at the rooms of the West Side Republican Club in this city. The intercollegiate cup, presented to the league by Edward A. Caswell, will be held one year by the winning team. In order to gain permanent possession of the trophy, however, a team must win it for ten successive years. Of the fifteen tournaments held so far, nine have been won by Harvard, seven by Columbia and one each by Yale and Princeton. In 1909 the Harvard and Yale teams tied for victory, each team scoring 7 points out of 12.

COUNTIES OF STATE ACCEPT STATE AID

County Boards Comply With New State Aid Highway Law Almost Unanimously Is the Report.

Reports received by the Wisconsin Highway Commission indicate that compliance with the terms of the new State Aid Highway Law was practically unanimous. There were six counties in the state in which no money was voted by the towns under the State Aid Law, these county boards, of course, had no special action to take this fall. The remaining sixty-five counties in the state, except one, complied fully with the terms of the law. It is expected that this one county will take action at a future meeting.

Statements in the press of the state seemingly indicated that La Crosse, Vernon, Monroe and Trempealeau counties had not, and would not, act under the law. All of these counties complied fully with the law and either re-elected their county highway commissioners, or, in the case of Vernon and Monroe counties, elected new ones. La Crosse county, since the state aid fund for that county was inadequate to meet the town votes, even voted an additional county tax of $2,500 to make up the deficiency. Both La Crosse and Trempealeau counties have been doing excellent work under the county aid law and expect to continue along the same lines under the state aid law.

Indications are that road work under the state aid law will be done in five hundred towns in sixty-two counties in the state to the amount of $1,100,000. With this amount it is expected to build about two hundred and twenty miles of stone road; one hundred and fifty miles of gravel road; twenty-five miles of shale road and two hundred and fifty miles of dirt road; a total of about six hundred and forty miles of road of all classes. In five miles of this, there will be built in addition to the forty bridges existing in the neighborhood of $150,000, in one hundred and twenty-three towns, making a total for all state aid work of $1,250,000. This amount of work is considerably more than has ever been done in any state during the first year of operations under a state aid law and the outlook for the growth of the road movement in Wisconsin is very bright.

A VERY REAL COUNTRY SCHOOL.

"Mr. H. H. Crocheron, in the January World's Work, tells some of his experiences in starting an agricultural high school in Baltimore County, Mo. The thing no is proudest of is the summer work done by his students. They not only all did some experimental corn-raising on their home-farms during the vacation; so eager were they that one boy unable to get permission to take a horse from the barn at night and cultivated the corn by moonlight.

"When the results came in it was found that, in every case, the boys who had used the school seed-corn beat their fathers' yield by a wide margin; and that 'Boone County White' did the best of all. By reason of which, says Mr. Crocheron, 'We this year have Boone County White growing at more than two hundred places in the county, and are preparing to advocate it wherever our new results shall show it to be of special value.'

"This is the kind of school the rural districts need—ones that can be of practical value to the whole community."

If the farmer boy is to be kept on the farm, this sort of a practical country school, education will exert a stronger influence than the agricultural college, because it is within the reach of the average boy, while the college is beyond him. The college, however, is entitled to much credit for planting the seed, and arousing the ambition of both the boy and his father to cultivate the soil along more intelligent lines."

The railroads are also contributing largely to this awakening, by sending out trains fully equipped with instructors to show the farmer how to increase his production. "Back to the farm" is the popular slogan, just now, but when farm life is made more attractive, it will lose its force, because the farmer boy will be content to stay by the farm and fill the niche to which he is best adapted.

STEEL AND IRON.

The steel and iron industry is more active today than at any time during the past twelve months, due to the fact that the railroads, which have so long been operating from hand to mouth, are forced into the market by demands which can no longer be ignored.

Both track and equipment have been neglected, and with a greatly reduced working force, accidents have been of frequent occurrence, with heavy losses. Railroad buying stimulates many other lines of business, and the outlook for 1912 is promising. The following news item from Pittsburgh, is encouraging:

"All the Youngstown district mills are at work this week on about the same schedule as during the past week. At the Brown-Bonell plant of the Republic Iron & Steel Co. the only idle departments will be the so-called hand mills No. 3 bar, 12-inch and old 10-inch mills. At Lansingville the plate mill will be in commission as usual."

"Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. will operate on the old schedule, seven tube mills, fourteen sheet mills, steel department puddle mill and three skelp mills being in commission."

"Youngstown Iron & Steel Co. is working in all departments, the demand for sheets being more brisk than for some months."

"At the Carnegie mills all of the departments will operate this week. At New Castle more than five thousand the workers went to work when the Shenango and Greer plants resumed operations in full. Both have been working partially, but the entire thirty hot mills of the Shenango plant and the twenty hot mills of the Greer plant resumed today. It is expected both will operate steadily until summer."

"Work has been commenced by the National Tube Co. at its Pennsylvania plant on the order of the Canadian Western Gas Light & Heat Co. of Calgary, Alberta, for 300 miles of pipe, amounting to about $3,000,000."

The United States Steel Corporation, the Standard Oil Co. and the International Harvester Co. sold last year $171,000,000 worth of their products abroad. The dissolution of these great American corporations will decrease the volume of our export trade, and the question of who is to be benefited at home, is still an open question.

"The University of Wisconsin today is 'progressive' in the modern sense, which means that the past can go hang, so long as we can gather all the plums in the present. It is 'progressive' with stone and mortar, with fat jobs and political tutelage, but of the spiritual and moral progress that John Bascom inspired, it knows as much as a babe knows of calculus."

This paragraph, from the Milwaukee Free Press, expresses popular sentiment concerning the state school. The reference to the late John Bascom is significant, for the university failed to honor his memory at memorial services recently held in Madison.

If the bills now pending in Congress relating to steel cars and block signals, become laws, the railroads of the country will be obliged to spend five hundred million dollars, within the next six years, to comply with demands. With no chance to increase incomes, the problem of where the money is coming from presents a serious aspect.

The Y. M. C. A. work at Manitowish has been abandoned, and the headquarters turned over to a boys' club to be used for helping the boys along similar lines to the Scout movement. There is room for both the Y. M. C. A. and the Scouts, but the latter should not be neglected. The boys of the country are the most valuable asset of the next generation.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

THE OLD-FASHIONED CHRISTMAS.

We didn't have no high-toned gifts, like toys in cars or such. And what we got was simple, quite and did not cost so much. We crawled out in early morn'g quite anxiously to see what Santa Claus had gone and left upon our Christmas tree. We found a lot of nice popcorn, all hung upon a string. And then, perhaps, a homemade sled that father built, all painted red. And maybe one nice pair of boots with copper toes, by Inez.

We didn't find no stocks and bonds or sparkling diamond rings. Or phonographs or cameras or other costly things. But homemade nightgowns and the like was soiled and faded, and we can all remember yet. A bunch of radishes for each kid was hung upon the tree. There also was a sock, you know. With one big orange in the toe. Topped off with nuts and candy, a delicious sight to see.

We stuck to the parental roof and mother cooked the bird. To think of leaving home that day was really quite absurd. The relatives all stuck around and stayed up late at night. And that was when the Christmas day was celebrated right. You're welcome to the high-priced gifts and fashion and the rest. For after all is said and done, we always had a lot of fun. And I must say that I enjoyed the old-time Christmas best.

ACCORDING TO UNCLE ARNOLD. Arnold Miller is cutting down on his smoking. He smokes only three times a day now, from breakfast to dinner, from dinner to supper, and from supper to bedtime.

About the most pestering job I know of is to cut a barrel of cabbage for sauerkraut with a safety razor. Anno Frisby says he has got a new typewriter that he can carry around in his suitcase. Must be some cramp for the lady to be toted around that way.

Uncle Ezra Harkins says he is going to an optometrist down to the city to have his eyes tested. It will certainly take an optometrist to help Uncle Ezra, as he is one hundred and nineteen years old his cousin's birthday.

Miss Pansy Perkins says she is going to the city to get a job on a switchboard. Her father, William Thibault, says he doesn't know just what for thing it is but it is probably something to hang hair on.

It is said that one-half the world does not know how the other half lives, but that is a cinch. The other half is selling life insurance.

Elmer Jones of our village evidently means to commit suicide by starvation, for he is out canvassing our country right in the winter with a book on the north pole.

Uncle Peter has got a fine present for his wife this Christmas. It is a churn. Hank Tummins intends to give his wife a new wringer. Something useful seems to be the order.

The fellow that listens gets along about twice as well in this world as the fellow that talks.

Rev. Hanks said it was everybody's duty to give his father men all the Christmas cheer possible, and Hank Tummins said so far as he was concerned he was willing to give all of his father men three cheers. There never was anything small about Hank.

OUR LATE SYMPOSIUM. Mrs. J. H. W. writes: "I have a very careless maid. Yesterday when ready to put on my hair to go out and make a few calls, I found that she was dusting the parlor furniture with it. I bought her a nice new feather duster only the other day, but I find upon investigation that she is wearing it upon her new winter hat. I went to find my second best hair, and found that the maid had worn it to the matinee. These things happen right along. I tried to hide my small curls by putting them in my husband's tobacco jar and when he began smoking his pipe the air about our house was simply unbearable. Will some of the sisters kindly answer through the Editor at Madison column and tell how they keep their hair in good shape."

H. T. R. says: "This hair face has gone far enough. My wife was stooping over the kitchen range yesterday morning when three of her curls dropped into the frying pan and she cooked them along with the sausage, not realizing her mistake. I'll buy hair for my wife but I'll be hanged if I'll eat it for her or for any other woman."

WHAT DAD WILL GET. Ma will get her set of furs, sister her new soukkin coat, Brother Bill his touring car, Brother Pete his motor boat.

Uncle Hank will get his cane, Uncle Amos his cigars. George his watch and chain, Little Bob his train of cars. Grandma will receive her gloves, Aunt Lucille her Persian rug. Grandpa his new easy chair, Uncle Jim his shaving mug. Cousin Kate will get her ring, Cousin Joe his smoking set. Cousin Ann her set of books, Cousin Horace a cornet. All accounted for but dad. Must remember him some way. There's no doubt what Dad will get. Dad will get the bills to pay.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

R. A. LONG, BENEFACTOR.

I am going to give you some rather unusual advice. Make money. Make it honestly. Make it and give it away.

Say what you will, money as our society is constituted at present is a tremendous power for good as well as evil.

There's R. A. Long. He is a Kansas City millionaire who has made his money largely in buying timberlands. And he is giving it away with lavish hand. He helps to endow colleges, sends out missionaries and gives to churches and charities.

For instance: When it was proposed to build a hospital in Kansas City, R. A. Long said, "Let's make it one of the largest and best in the world." And he went down in his pocket and gave about half the proposed cost of the big institution.

Said Mr. Long, "I make it one of the conditions that one-third of the beds of this hospital shall be free to the poor."

Is not that fine? Make money—honestly—and give it away because of the world's need. Colleges, churches, hospitals, homes for the friendless and little children, humane societies, night schools, associated charities—all these worthy causes make an appeal that only may be met with money.

Make money—honestly—and give it away because you can thus multiply yourself.

One time R. A. Nye is just R. A. Nye. But one thousand times R. A. Long is a thousand R. A. Longs. And a thousand R. A. Longs is a thousand times R. A. Nye—and then some.

Do you see? Make money—honestly—and give it away because of the happiness it will bring you.

We are all of us shut up to this limitation. To be happy we must give, either of self or money, and the more we give the happier we may be. He who is stingy cannot be happy. He is not built that way. Nor can the generous man who sees the world's need and is unable to supply it be as happy as he would like to be.

Make money—honestly. Make it and give it away to the cause that needs—because when you lie down in your long, last sleep—All you can hold in your dead cold hand is what you have given away.

Make money—honestly. Make it and give it away to the cause that needs—because when you lie down in your long, last sleep—All you can hold in your dead cold hand is what you have given away.

Make money—honestly. Make it and give it away to the cause that needs—because when you lie down in your long, last sleep—All you can hold in your dead cold hand is what you have given away.

Providence in Human Affairs. If a great change is to be made in human affairs, the minds of men will be fitted to it, the general opinions and feelings will draw that way. Another Little Convenience Here:

If you have more than one purchase to make, ask the first salesperson for a transfer slip. She will enter your name and address on it, and on the sales slip of the article you buy. Each time you make a subsequent purchase, it will not be necessary to give your name or any directions. The salesperson will simply enter your purchases on the transfer. So you go through the store—no paying or waiting for change, no packages to carry, none of the little annoyances that sometimes make shopping tedious, such as a long hunt in one or more departments for what you want, on account of the clerk not being posted, or several clerks may be in one section of the store and none in other sections, etc. When you are through buying, you pay the last clerk who waited on you and buying, you pay the last clerk who waited on you and you may either have all your purchases to carry with you or have them sent through our delivery. If you have a charge account or the goods are to be sent C. O. D. it is not even necessary to stop to pay. The transfer is a convenience for you and for us, too. It enables us to collect all your packages together and deliver them in one lot—the very first delivery after we get your transfer slip back. It enables you to save time. It is a bit of store service that should be more universally used, while some people imagine it takes longer to shop in a department store—it really is quicker and one gets much better service.

FALLS INTO RIVER AND DROWNS WHILE PLAYING ON BRIDGE

Edwin Swanson, Twelve Year Old Son of Charles Swanson, Falls From Racine Street Bridge and Drowns Late Today.

While playing with a number of boy companions on the Racine street bridge this afternoon, Edwin Swanson, aged about twelve years, son of Charles E. Swanson, 539 South Franklin street, accidentally fell into the river and drowned before aid could reach him.

The boy was able to swim for three or four hundred feet toward the east shore but sank before he reached the bank. His companions were panic-stricken and unable to reach him in boats before he went under.

The boy was playing tag on the bridge at the time of the accident, which occurred shortly before three o'clock. A search was immediately started for the body but at four o'clock had not been found as the current of the river is especially swift at this point.

River Is Drugged.
Herbert Griffen was the first man called to the scene of the drowning. When the boy was last seen he was a short distance from the east shore near the property of Dr. W. A. Mann, 332 South Main street. Griffen at once notified the police and the patrol was rushed to the place. Two boats were pressed into service and the river was drugged in the vicinity of Lumber Dealers Make Definite Plans.

Move To Combat Mail Order Encroachment, Good One.

As reported in the Gazette a few evenings ago, the lumber yards in Janesville are planning a campaign against the mail order houses that are sure to keep the trade in Janesville and will be a benefit to all people in and around this vicinity.

The extent of the plan is much greater than at first would be supposed. It means an entire revolution of the buying and handling end of the millwork business. Selling at wholesale to the consumer is the outcome of the new idea and this is made possible by making Janesville a jobbing center. Sash, doors and mouldings will be bought in carload quantities and handled in a jobbing manner. In many communities where the catalogue houses have sought trade the local dealers have longed for some sovereign plan for preventing the diverting of trade to the large cities and in many instances this longing has never gone beyond the mere idea; it has never taken tangible form.

A representative of the Gazette, in talking with a local dealer, asked in regard to prices and comparisons, a few items were cited:

A 2 ft. 6 in. by 6 ft. 6 in. 1 1/2 in. 5 cross panel yellow pine door listed in a mail order catalogue at $2.07. The home price now under the new plan is $2.00. To the Chicago price made is added the freight, delay and chance of mistake. The home price is cheaper on the spot and the door is on hand for inspection, or exchange if an error has been made.

A 24x24 2 1/2 in. storm sash costs 93c P. O. B. Chicago from a mail order house, and can be bought at home for 95c.

An 8x10 4 lb. barn sash in Chicago costs 42c, in Janesville it can be bought at 32c. The same rule is true of every item of mill work and added to the saving is the quality, each article having back of it the guarantee of the local dealer, an absolute protection to the purchaser.

HOLIDAY RECESS AT SCHOOL FOR BLIND

Delightful Christmas Musical Program Was Given by Students Last Evening.

Students at the State school for the blind presented a delightful Christmas entertainment at the school assembly room last evening before the beginning of the annual holiday recess today. The program consisted of a large number of musical selections, vocal and instrumental, which were very pleasingly rendered. A number of citizens and friends were present to enjoy the selections.

Nearly the entire teaching force left today for their homes for the Christmas vacation and about one half the students also left for their homes. The vacation closes Jan. 3.

RADICAL CHANGES IN TELEGRAPH SYSTEMS

Heavy Copper Wires to be Strung by Postal Company for Use of Independent Telephone Companies.

One of the latest moves in the battle between the big telephone companies of the United States is found in the following statement received by Stanger, A. C. President of the Postal Cable Company today:
"Miss M. Davis, who was recently appointed superintendent of telephone of the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company, announced today that his company has issued instructions to its construction department to proceed with the erection of additional heavy copper wires between all important points on the system of the company, for the purpose of extending the telephone use of the same to the independent telephone companies."

THEATER

MORE PERILOUS THAN FLYING
OVER NIAGARA.
Just a week before Lincoln Beachey thrilled the world by flying over Niagara Falls, he made another record in the history of aviation which he considered far more perilous.
The scene of the exploit was Wilkes-Barre, Pa., where he operated a motion camera exclusively for Lyman H.
Howe while simultaneously operating his aeroplane. The experiment has been tried repeatedly by foreign film manufacturers but always without success. The flights in Wilkes-Barre will go on record as the first flights during which excellent motion scenes were photographed direct from the aeroplane.

The results were achieved only after long and careful planning, not only on the part of Mr. Howe and his photographers, but also by Messrs.
Beachey, McCurdy, and their mechanicians, all of whom manifested the keenest interest in the novel undertaking. Special appliances were devised to fasten and adjust the delicate motion picture camera to the aeroplane in such a way that the films would not show any vibration of the aeroplane and that would not handicap or impede Beachey in his movements. At the same time it had to be done in a way that would allow Beachey to operate the camera readily with one hand while steering the aeroplane with the other. All this was imperative but was finally accomplished very satisfactorily. Then Beachey familiarized himself thoroughly with the mechanism of the camera itself and rehearsed its operation. Without all these precautions,
Mr. Howe realized no reasonable success could be expected. But even after arranging for all details thoroughly, Beachey never would have succeeded were it not for his wonderful skill as a mechanic and his exportness in adapting himself so quickly to manipulating a camera with one hand while simultaneously operating the steering wheel of the aero-plane with the other.

Imagine yourself turning a handle vertically with the left hand and a steering wheel back and forth with the other, while all the time you are daring through the air at great altitudes when a false move any instant would spell disaster, and you can better realize just what Beachey did.
All these efforts were richly rewarded by a series of animated scenes which shows every spectator just what Beachey saw. They impart the same exhilarating sensation he felt while flying high over the city, and show just how the city, its streets, parks, notable buildings, railroads, etc., look as seen from the clouds. Another portion shows how the river, dotted with numerous row boats and bridges crowded with spectators, looked. Then, too, it shows how the open country—fields, farms, woods, etc., appear to the aviator. These scenes together with many other big new features will be reproduced at the Myers Theatre, Dec. 29 and 30, Matinee Saturday.

AN UNEXPECTED BUT PLEASANT EXPERIENCE

Jack Latt, dramatic critic for the Chicago American, experienced a strange sensation last summer.
These theatrical in Chicago were very dull.
The memorable hot wave which delicately killed so many people, at the same time killed business at all the leading theatres, excepting only one. It was a case of "the survival of the fittest"
and the fittest proved to be Lyman
H. Howe's Travel Festival.
The Chicago American's critic dropped in casually to learn the why and wherefore of the great vogue and success of Mr. Howe's exhibition.
And this is how he described the sensations of the aeroplane ride, one of Mr. Howe's new features at the Myers Theatre, Dec. 29 and 30, Matinee Saturday.—Chicago Evening American.

Cured in His Own Home Town.
Rushie, Wis. Jacob Braun tells the way for his fellow townsmen to be cured of kidney and bladder trouble as he himself was cured. "For over 20 years I had kidney trouble and catarrh of the bladder. I read an advertisement of Foley Kidney Pills, got some and took them. Before taking them I was not able to work, but now I have commenced to work again and I am improving every day. The action of my bladder was frequent and painful and I lost a great deal of sleep on that account the first part of the night, but since taking Foley Kidney Pills all this pain and annoyance has ceased, my back no longer aches and I feel better in every way. I gladly recommend Foley Kidney Pills to all who have kidney trouble. Badger Drug

GOOD PRODUCTION OF "FLIRTING PRINCESS"

Presentation of Popular Musical Comedy, Under Auspices of Elks, is Well Received.
Talented and accomplished actors and singers in the star roles, a creditable support of chorus singers and dancers, strikingly original costumes, and a number of novelty features, formed a successful combination in Myers Theatre last night under the auspices of the local Elks' lodge. A good sized audience witnessed it and showed its appreciation by repeatedly calling back the performers and chorus to repeat their most pleasing songs and dances.

Harry Bulger, in the role of "Sport Bangs," won the favor of the audience with his first appearance on the stage, and his free-and-easy manner of acting and excellent rendition of the humorous lines, made him the most popular male member of the cast.
Dale Fuller as "Armadillo Bangs," played her part equally well.

Alison Darling, "The Flirting Princess," in voice, appearance and naive impersonation of an oriental beauty, showed her right to first place in the cast. One of the favorites of the evening was Eileen Sheridan as "Dracula Peck." Her part called for perhaps more singing and acting than any other lady member of the cast, for which the audience was very grateful.

The most striking features of the production were "The Egyptian Turkey Trot," the "Oogie Dance," and the "Joys and Glories."

The Gazette's Great Prize Campaign Comes To a Close Saturday Night

But Two More Days and Winners of Prizes Will Be Decided.—Imperative That Candidates to Win Must Keep Busy

Remember—Ballot Box Will Be Found in the Office of the Campaign Manager Until 8 O'clock Saturday Evening and Then Transferred to the Editorial Library Where the Final Count Will Be Conducted in Full View of All.

Don't be late at the finish.—Those expecting to bring in their subscriptions from districts 2 and 3 should plan to be at The Gazette office early on Saturday as the ballot box will close at exactly 8 o'clock p. m. Do not wait until the last moment and expect the manager to wait upon you then.

Tomorrow and Saturday are the remaining days in the great prize campaign. On Saturday evening it will be determined who the ladies are who will win the valuable prizes. The candidates have done nobly up to date and their efforts are not relaxing during the remaining days. Subscriptions are pouring into the office at an unprecedented rate and the funds of votes are going into the reserves, when the last count is made for the first time and upon them depends largely who will be the fortunate candidates. Persons who promised to vote for some young lady in this campaign should do so by subscribing for The Gazette within the next two days. A little help now will be worth a barrel of consolation after this event is over.

But Two Days Remain. Two days is not a very long time but it is going to be filled with the greatest possible effort on behalf of the candidates and with the greatest possible interest and enthusiasm on the part of the general public. There was never a campaign held in this state which has excited the interest of so many people as has this one. And no wonder. There are many young ladies directly interested and there are hundreds and hundreds of people working for them. The two days which remain in this campaign will be the most spirited of all and will count more than all the previous time combined.

Those who are in the lead should look after their laurels for there are many young women who are not in the initial position who will make good records on the closing days. It is then that the reserves which have been hoarded so carefully during the past weeks will be very much in evidence. Candidates should make the most of every minute from now on, as this great campaign has settled down to the tolling pull of the last two days.

Finish Will Be Exciting. The last two days are going to be exciting ones. The rank and file of the candidates those who have not hitherto shown winning form in the number of votes registered—have at last come to an appreciation of the fact that in some districts the prizes are anybody's who will go out and do a day's work to win them. There is no one quite so anywhere for the reason that so many are obviously concealing their strength. Many more are hoarding their resources, while as a matter of fact, they have all their votes counted.

Much can be done in two days, much will be done. That is certain. But let it be done right and finished. One of the saddest spectacles that could be witnessed would be the sight of a candidate standing just without The Gazette office door at 8 p. m. Saturday night with enough votes in her hand to win an elegant automobile.

Interest in Surrounding Towns.

The seven cities that claimed the honor of being the birthplace of Homer will be as nothing compared to the number of victories that are ready now to claim the distinction of being the home of a winner of The Gazette automobile. This is natural enough, for Homer was exceedingly dead before any community claimed him and there is a large number of very live ones concerned in the publicity which is to confer distinction on some towns and individuals.

It has become a matter of more than individual success that is now involved in this most notable of newspaper campaigns. Not only are individuals arrayed against each other, but whole communities and towns have gone into the competition and there is no doubt whatever that it is being made a matter of town pride in many places—the winning of first honors.

The Winners and Admirations. There will be congratulations for the winners and admiration for those who made a good fight and received only the cash consolation, but there will be nothing doing in the candidate who fails to get her votes in in time to have them counted.

You see The Gazette has no discretion in the matter. When the polls are closed they are closed to win and that is all there is to it.

There never was a campaign which excited quite the interest that this present one has. It is not only a matter of individual preference, but cities and towns are lining up behind candidates. And it is certain that there will be a hot finish so far as The Gazette is concerned. There will be a lot of people about and it will not be easy to dispose of the crowd. The Gazette desires everyone present that can possibly attend the final count and announcement of winners will be nothing doing for the candidate to get your votes in early, and never mind the moral effect on your campaign.

This is everybody's fight and there is no use of counting yourself a winner until you are sure. And next to having votes enough to win the best thing is to have your subscriptions in in plenty of time to have the ballots made out and the votes in the ballot box.

FURNITURE

Is the Most Lasting Gift

FOR a member of your family or some close friend, to whom you wish to give something that expresses solid appreciation and lasting sentiment, you cannot select a more appropriate gift than a piece of furniture.

In most homes furniture must be purchased for the use of the whole family and the individual preferences of the different members of the family cannot be consulted.

Think a bit! Have you heard your mother express a desire for a china cabinet, or your father say he liked a certain kind of easy chair, or your sister wish for a dressing table, or your brother for a book case?

From our complete stock of reliable furniture, we suggest the following as appropriate gift pieces.

A Brief Christmas Catalogue

Music cabinet, parlor table, library table, book-cases, Morris chair, Turkish chair, sewing rocker, buffet, china closet, writing desk, chiffonier, if you want to give a very handsome present we suggest a complete bedroom suit, dresser, fancy screen, brass bed, davenport, kitchen cabinet or sewing machine.

YEGGMEN FORCE SAFE AT THE HOHENADEL CANNING FACTORY

Croke into Office of Hohenadel Company Last Night and Made Haul of About Seventy Dollars.

Cracksmen last night broke into the office of the Hohenadel Canning company at the factory near the south limits of the city, forced the safe doors open with dynamite, punches and drills, and looted it of currency amounting to from sixty to seventy dollars. The books, papers, and other securities in the safe were untouched and there is therefore no clue which might lead to the detection and conviction of the robbers.

The robbery was discovered at about eight o'clock this morning when the office was opened for business. The police were notified at once and Chief of Police Appleby and Sheriff E. H. Hanson went to the premises to inspect the work of the cracksmen and discover, if possible, a clue to their identity. Nothing in the room had been disturbed since the burglars made their visit. The doors of the safe were opened and two broken bit-braces used in the work lay on the floor, as well as two heavy hammers which belonged to the company.

An inspection of the safe revealed the fact that it had been forced open solely by the use of tools; no explosives had been employed. The two heavy outer doors, which were about five inches thick and fitted with a fire-proof cement, had been opened by knocking off the knob of the combination dial with hammers and forcing the bolt in with a hammer and punches. The knobs of the door handles had been removed and the bolts driven in in the same manner. This released the lock and allowed the doors to be opened. The inside doors which are of steel and half an inch thick, were broken open by drilling two or three holes at the line of their intersection and by prying with "jimmies" at those points.

The safe cracksmen had evidently entered the office by unlocking the door for there was nothing to show that they had broken the lock or opened a window. The job was evidently performed by two men for there were two sets of footprints leading toward the building from the north and away from it in the same direction. It seems possible that the cracksmen came and made their departure along the railway tracks and did not come through the city at all.

No watchman is kept at the canning factory and the nearest house is some distance away, so that there was little danger of the burglars being detected at their work. Their sense of security was shown by their partaking of a lunch of corn and peas out of the company's stock.

HEART AND HOME TALKS
BY BARBARA BOYD

The Christmas Letter

THE custom of sending Christmas cards instead of some small gift is growing, and it is to be greatly commended. It has been a common practice abroad, particularly in England; but until the last few years, it has had but little vogue here. Many of us thoughtfully thought that if we were going to spend money, we might as well get something that had some use. A card when its message was delivered was tossed aside; whereas, a gift if carefully chosen, would be preserved and would have value either in the field of utility or beauty.

But though in theory this is all very well, it doesn't work out satisfactorily in practice. The little gift that we cared to send was hard to find. We eventually spent more than we intended, and we consumed hours and days, and wore ourselves out hunting it. It was really the numerous little gifts that we sent to more acquaintances that transformed the one-time joyous Christmas giving into a burden.

And it was not only a tax to us who gave; but those who received felt obliged to return. Notwithstanding all the precepts about Christmas not being a season of barter, Mrs. Jones felt a sinking at her heart, when she received a gift from Mrs. Smith, and had provided none in return. There was a grand scurrying among Mrs. Jones' available assets, and at last something was dragged forth and sent. The debt was paid. But the spirit in which it was paid had better not be mentioned. It certainly bore little resemblance to the Christmas spirit.

And privately, just among ourselves, though we wouldn't say it out loud for anything, haven't we, all of us, stowed away in bureau drawers and on closet shelves, dozens of these Christmas gifts, that have to be dusted and taken care of at housecleaning time, and about which we ask ourselves year in and out, "What shall we do with them?"

So is it with wonder that the dainty, artistic Christmas card is being welcomed with pangs of joy. We can sit down comfortably in a chair at a counter and choose dozens of them. We can find the most captivating, appropriate sentiments from Dickens, from Van Dyke, from Ruskin, from many of our favorite authors. There is no trouble to find what we want; rather, we are burdened with the riches offered, and it is difficult to decide what not to take. The probability is that we purchase more than we need, because we can't resist their cheery messages, and refined, artistic prettiness. They cost little. They are not much trouble to send. And if we wish to keep those we receive, a hundred or so in a scrap book take little room. Or, their mission ended, we can toss them aside without injury to anyone's feelings.

If we take time by the forelock and wish something individual, you can have special cards made for us. Or, and this is better yet, we can order some special Christmas stationery. If we can't find any to suit our particular fancy, and we can write our own Christmas letters ourselves. This, of course, takes time, but such a greeting has a personal flavor that makes it particularly welcome. The letters need not be long, but in each can be some little personal thought that shows it was intended for the one receiving it, and no other. If one has the time, the individual Christmas letter on appropriate Christmas stationery is the most charming greeting of all.

But if it is not possible, lend your support to the Christmas card movement. It is a step in the right direction, and should be encouraged.

Barbara Boyd.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON.

I HAVE a Christmas idea," writes one of my letter friends. "Often when the old folks get their family ruled, there are things about the home that really need replenishing. If the children would all club together and do something worth while each Christmas, this condition of affairs would not exist long."

"I know a family of children who have, with the help of the old folks, grown to be somewhat of a strain now. The old folks have had a long, hard pull. That home needs replenishing inside and out, and I think it is a shame. Certainly the children must remember their parents with some Christmas gift. Why not do something worth while, instead of keeping up their own appearances and forgetting the little mother, who must be so tired of that sticky dining room table, and the father who must long to be able to paint the old house?"

"I know of another home that sadly needs a good housecleaning. I warrant you that one of the children who earns splendid pay, will spend more on trinkets for her friends than would buy a very good broomcase."

Most heartily, I endorse my correspondent's ideas on this subject, except on one particular. She suggests that the replenishing for the home shall be given to the mother, or to mother and father, for Christmas. Perhaps you think that's as it should be. I don't. Let me tell you of a family composed of some friends of mine once held, and the custom which came of it.

There were four children, and father and mother on this family. The four children were all wage earners, and for several years had bought father and mother some thing for the home—one year a shawl, another a set of china, etc. For each other, they bought distinctively personal things, which each one particularly wanted.

At the annual Christmas conference this year, one of the children suggested that for mother's gift they purchase the living room. Two of the others approved, but the third objected. "Yes, I know it needs repainting terribly," she said, "but I want to get mother something personal like we give each other. She needs a pretty silk waist, and that's what I'm going to give her. I don't see why she should always be put out with a gift for the house. For three years, you've given her something as much as she. You know one of the reasons we particularly want it is that we are going to have that New Year's party. That's our party and not mother's, and I don't see why we should give the paper to her and give each other things we want for ourselves."

It was a new point of view, but after some discussion the family concluded unanimously to admit the justice of it. Whereupon the originator of the discussion promulgated another idea. "Why not," she questioned, "Why shouldn't we club together for that paper and call it a gift to the house besides what we give to mother and father? If the house is shabby, it's partly because we children have made it so, and I think we owe it something for harboring us all these years."

The idea was laughed at at first, but accepted in the end. And not only did the house get a Christmas present that year, but every year since then it has had some gift.

Don't you think this custom is rather a jolly idea?

I do.

As my correspondent points out, while the children are growing up, there are usually so many expenses that the home grows shabby. Now when the children have become wage earners, what more fitting than that they should help replenish the home now?

But I think it is much better if they do not do this at the expense of mother's Christmas gift.

Here's hoping that the Christmas gift to the home will become a Christmas custom in more than one household, and that the little mothers shall occasionally receive something for themselves, instead of for general use.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

The Holly Trimmed Plum Pudding
With Hard and Liquid Sauces.

By Alice E. Whitaker.

Canned food may be the housekeeper's friend in the emergency but do try to keep it out of holiday feasting for there is an appreciable fault in it to those who have any sentiment in their nature. If the young housekeeper's first plum pudding is a bit waxy in the center or crumbly at the edges it yet represents her good intentions and is equal to the finest commercially brand on this market. Surely nothing can be better than mother's pudding made after her favorite recipe and well seasoned with love.

Plum pudding takes but second rank to the goose at Christmas dinner, being it to the table garnished with holly and the blue flame from a spoonful of brandy poured over it at the last minute and lighted. The pudding may be made the day before or even two weeks before, in fact the far sighted housewife frequently makes enough at this time to serve on the few occasions that it will be needed during the season.

The most convenient way to cook a pudding is to set the mold in a fireless cooker, the next is to use a steamer and the last is to cook it in a closely covered kettle of boiling water. Nothing is more attractive than a melon mold but if smaller puddings are liked use one pound baking powder cake.

For an inexpensive plum pudding use one cup of suet, one level teaspoon of baking powder, one level teaspoon each of salt, cloves, and cinnamon and pour into a large mold and steam three hours.

A plum pudding that may be eaten without fear of indigestion is made as follows: Mix one cup of brown sugar, three-quarters cup of molasses, one cup of finely chopped suet and one cup of milk. Sift two cups of flour with one level teaspoon of soda, add one-half cup of seeded raisins, chopped coarsely, one-quarter cup each of chopped citron and of currants. Mix lightly to coat the fruit, add the liquid ingredients and while well mixed stir in three cups of soft stale bread crumbs. Steam three hours in molds.

Both hard and liquid sauces are usually served with the holiday pudding. Try one of these hard sauces: Beat one cup of powdered sugar with one-half cup of butter until creamy, add one teaspoon of vanilla and white of one egg beaten stiff. Pipe lightly on a small plate and it will keep two or three hours set in a cold place. Or press the mixture through a pastry bag in fancy shapes. For another sauce, cream one-quarter cup of butter with three-quarters cup of powdered sugar and after beating lightly on a small plate, grate a little nutmeg over the top as this flavoring is considered good with rich fruit puddings. Smother the sauce into a mound taken from its lightness.

It is not necessary, nor always wise, to serve a wine sauce. As a substitute beat two eggs in the top of a double boiler, add one cup of sugar creamed with one-half cup of butter, the grated yellow rind and the juice of two lemons. Stir in one-half cup of boiling water and when the sauce reaches the boiling point take from the fire at once as it may cook longer and curdle.

The KITCHEN CABINET

THESE are no birds in last year's nest!

In last year's nest there are no flies! No vain regrets disturb my breast. For aught that in the future lies! And last year's birds and last year's flies.

Have passed the reach of tears, and sighs.

DON'TS FOR THE BABY.

Don't dance him on your knees until his little brain is addled.

Don't pin him into tight bands and clothes and then wonder why he cries.

Don't forget that three hundred thousand babies die each year before they are a year old, in our own United States.

Don't forget what the baby needs and not what you would like to do for him.

Don't lack courage to baby promises. Kissings of your fondly.

Don't forget to feed him regularly.

Don't forget that he needs much sleep and much letting alone, lots of fresh air and sunshine, as does any young plant.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

An excellent way of cleaning lamp chimneys is to hold them over the spout of the tea kettle full of boiling water until they become well steamed, then polish with a clean, dry cloth.

The stems may be quickly removed from currants by sprinkling them with a little flour and then rubbing them between the hands. This takes much less time than picking them over, and is quite as effective.

Try using an old paint brush to put on stove-blackening.

Think every day of beautiful things, for if you don't you will soon get so that there are no beautiful things to think of.

No matter how house work promises, now how much sewing there is to do, it will pay to take a little time each day, if possible at least two or three times each week, to get out doors and enjoy the beauty of nature, to draw in deep breaths of pure, sweet air, so that the body and spirit may be refreshed. Work will go better, so that it pays. Even if things were not done a woman owes it to herself to pay some regard to her finer nature. Her family will appreciate her the more she values herself. There are home duties and duties which belong to herself, and she who honors both is the all around useful, happy woman.

Wonderful Artificial Man.

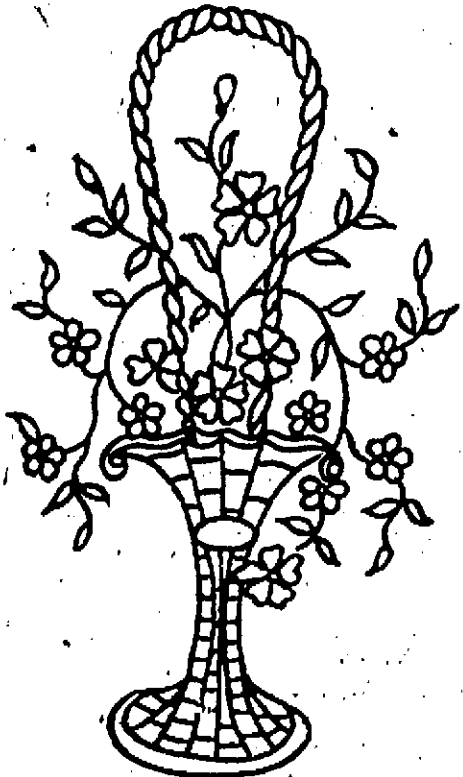

A Berlin inventor has succeeded, after years of toil, in making an artificial man who can walk, make all movements, speak, sing, laugh and whistle. It is a life-size figure, and so natural an imitation as to be completely deceptive a yard away. "Occultus," as the figure is named, obeys words of command, such as "March!" and "halt," and he answers any questions put to him. It is not an illusion or a trick. It is a piece of pure mechanical work.

Thought for Today
By MRS. ROBERT M. LAFOLETTE.

FIRST CALLS IN WASHINGTON. THE new Congressman's wife always interests me. From whatever part of the country she may come, whatever her previous experience, the social life of Washington is new to her. She has the privilege, and, in a way, an official obligation to make the first call upon the lady of the White House, the wives or social representatives of the members of the Diplomatic Corps, the Supreme Court, the Senate, the Cabinet, and of the members of Congress older in service than her husband. The President's wife does not return visits, and some of the Cabinet ladies return their calls by card. But the others are expected to return in person. So the new Congressman's wife may enter the social whirl to any extent she chooses. She seldom undertakes to cover all the ground the first season, but some go at it as they would at a house cleaning, and it is not a bad idea either.

It sounds like a tremendous undertaking, but "calling" is systematized. Days and hours are definite. The ropes are easily learned. The newcomer, even the clearest headed, is a little dazed at first, and lost in the maze of new names and faces. But she meets the same persons over and over, by the end of a week she may have a larger calling list than she has ever had at home. It is with the great names of the present day, political history of the United States.

One should not take this piece of Washington life too seriously nor expect to make lasting friendships in this interchange of calls. It is for the hour. There is something astonishing in just seeing so many people from over the country and the world, but the acquaintance is transient. "Good morning!" and "Good-bye!" are equally easily said in Washington, whether for the day, the season, or forever.

MOTIF FOR SACHETS AND FANCY ARTICLES.

A dainty motif is this little basket. It is especially designed for small pillows, sachets, or lingerie underwear. On a corset cover it would be charming to have the basket on one side with the initials under it, and on the other scattered sprays and flowers. If worked in colors the basket should be a light brown, the roses pink, the forget-me-nots blue and the leaves and stems green. The flowers and leaves are done in the solid satin stitch, and the basket and stems in the outline stitch. Mercerized cotton No. 35 or 40-floss will be suitable for the embroidery.

FADS AND FASHIONS

New York, Dec. 21.—For is a most popular trimming this winter for every type of costume from trotting frock to ball gown. The results of its use are admirable if it is handled understandingly, but on the whole, it imposes limitations on a frock; and fashionable or elegant separate furs worn with a costume into which fur does not enter, is a more practical proposition.

In many cases a rather wide band of some long haired fur borders the skirt bottom of a suit or frock which has no other fur trimmings and this mode is pretty, except in the case of a very short walking skirt such as young women now affect. French makers are showing a liking for such fur bands around back and sides, with some sort of finish at each side of the front, which is left plain. This skirt band of fur, with collar to correspond, is extremely popular and in Paris, where the modes are followed with less consideration for utility than here, some of the smartest costumes of the winter are in white velvet or in white satin, with wide skirt band of black lynx, black fox or skunk, and big coat revers of the same fur, corresponding motif being regarded as part of the costume.

There are shown, too, black velvet suits of similar type with white fox trimming and with big button holes bound in white, but the fluffy white fur at the bottom of the black skirt does not look altogether right and certainly is not desirable.

Tulle, seal and braided constructions of frocks and evening are a favorite trimming, especially for the black velvet, while narrow bands of skunk and of other dark, long haired furs are immensely effective in connection with sheer or light lined fabrics.

A very simple but remarkably chic model turned out by one of the famous Parisian houses, was a creamy white satin in the softest, most exquisite quality. The skirt, straight, but very slightly fluted into the waistband on the sides and in the back, was plain except for three very narrow bands of fur. A line of the dark fur finished the neck at the base of the throat, heading a deep plaited roll of black tulle and the elbow sleeves had the band of fur and deep plaiting. Another evening gown of tulle had its skirt bordered by sable and its softly draped flail falling low over the arms, also had a fur border.

Quite little peplum bodices of embroidered chiffon or not over plain straight satin skirts make pretty evening frocks of an informal sort, and some of these have odd touches of trimming which give them distinction. One such model, in a delicious shade of pink, had its peplum bodice of white chiffon laid over pink chiffon and embroidered all over in sprig design of pink crystal. It was further embellished around the demi-decollete neck and sleeves in coarse white wool and heavy silk.

In one-piece frocks for afternoon wear there are innumerable pretty things both in silk and cloth, though velvet plays a very conspicuous role in this connection. For wear under a fur coat the velvet frock, unless its bodice is almost entirely of sheer material, is too warm, but it is ideal colors and for evening purposes on this side of the water.

The most striking fur fad of the season, is the enormous scarf, usually straight, but occasionally pointed at the ends, very supple and light, very wide, long enough to wind round the body in any manner desired and still fall almost to the ground. The graceful wearing of these fur scarves is an art of itself, and, perhaps, that is why the Parisienne has taken up the cult so enthusiastically.

For dancing dresses chiffon seems to be the favorite material the season. Solid colors, as well as printed floral designs, are used in developing dresses in this material. The harmonious are of satin, in soft or flaming colors, and the chiffon is invariably arranged in ruffled form. The present sleeve is used in dresses of this type, although the set-in sleeve, giving the peasant sleeve effect, is also used. Many of the dresses have the sleeves made in one with the waist, with the trimming so arranged that the severity of the shoulder line is relieved. Broad trimmings, as well as metal effects, are used largely for this purpose. Princess of weeds are used in quite an extent and the trunks, a pretty finish for the feet of the tulle, ribbons of satin ribbon are among the attractive trimmings for dancing frocks, and are used to catch the draperies of chiffon near the foot of the skirt.

Many of the most attractive dancing frocks are trimmed with lace flounces, either arranged at the foot of the skirt, or sometimes three flounces are used, with the satin foundation skirt showing between each flounce. Some of the crepe material dresses in the light evening shades have quaint puffings, shirtings or platings arranged at the foot of the skirt. The use of ruffles, etc., does not in the least interfere with the narrow straight lines, as the skirt is made on the same narrow lines with ruffles as without. The raised waist line is shown on practically every kind of a dress, and this is especially true regarding dancing frocks.

This season will see corages of the most filmy textures, even if the other part of the gown is of plain, heavy material. Empire styles are responsible for this, for with the high waist line, which necessitates a short line and little material in the bodice, one can take all sorts of liberties with the corage decorations.

The latest in neckwear is the extravely large row of black or white planted maline. Frequently both colors are used together, one veiling the other.

Last season's wool embroideries have reappeared in a new form, and with the wool there is often combined a row of convoluted flowers of striped silk in high relief.

Much use is made of gold lace and ornaments on fashionable hats for covering the crowns and crushed bands and large bows.

Bonnets are higher this winter, and most of them have flaps. These are trimmed with feathers or akrettes placed well toward the back.

ANSWERS QUESTIONS REGARDING COOKING

BUSY HOUSEWIFE WANTS MORE EXPLICIT DIRECTIONS REGARDING USE OF PAPER BAGS.

USEFUL HINTS GIVEN

Suggestions That May be Well Followed by Those Who Handle This New Method of Cookery.

In response to numerous appeals from women readers of the Gazette for more explicit directions regarding the use of paper bags for household cooking, the Feature Editor has arranged a series of articles which may be of use to those who wish to try this new method of preparing food for the table.

Paper bag cookery is a new art and but few books have been published with any explicit directions for the use of the bags. The demonstration held under the auspices of the Gazette two weeks ago, was the first of its kind ever attempted by any newspaper in the United States as far as we are informed. That it interested the women readers is evinced by the increased sales for the bags at the stores handling them. Some of the housewives have been most successful in using them and others have not had uniform success. Perhaps the following general directions might as well lead off the series as they deal directly with the paper bag themselves. In the following articles the Feature Editor desires to credit Emily Hally, chef of the St. Regis Hotel, New York, and the American Journal-Examiner of New York, for suggestions and hints.

Cooking in paper bags appeals to many housewives as a unique, economical, labor-saving method of preparing a meal. Indeed, when attended with the expected results, food thus cooked retains a delicious flavor, and zest which are hardly obtainable through the old way.

The sealed bag prevents loss of the rich juices or shrinkage of the food, and the heat is most evenly more thoroughly distributed. This confinement of the heat, of course, greatly reduces the time required for cooking and makes a material reduction in the fuel bill. As the bag is always placed upon a gridiron in the oven, pots and pans are not needed, and the malodorous fumes peculiar to many dishes are unknown.

Like all such innovations, however, the new paper bag cookery has its restrictions. Nowhere is success more dependent upon repeated experience, and the average person will seldom be proud of her first attempt with the bags.

It should be understood at the outset that the scheme is not practicable for a coal range. Gas or electricity is necessary for the method, because of the steady heat which can be kept. Neither is bag cooking on a large scale to be advised. Hotels and boarding houses with their accustomed ranges cannot afford to experiment with great quantities, especially since they rarely use gas for the more important dishes. Certain technicalities of seasoning and stirring the cooking food, only too well known to the cook and the chef, are precluded by the closed bag, and while such minor matters are negligible in the private residences, they loom up significantly in the hotel kitchen.

But at the house or at the apartment the paper bag may well be employed to great advantage and satisfaction. The up-to-date housewife can entertain a party of friends at a "paper bag dinner" and the toothsome viands are brought upon the table concealed in these queer-looking browned sacs, thought but exclamations of delight can escape her guests when the novel puff-pouches are all open and give forth volumes of savory, fragrant odors. Again, if the busy thrifty woman be delayed by a long afternoon shopping, and reaches home only to find time enough to prepare a "paper bag" dinner for her family, the hurry-up remedy lends itself to handy cooking. Fish roasts and some of the vegetables can be easily prepared and made ready to serve in a surprisingly short period.

Until the cook is accustomed to the various times required for different dishes, she will probably be hampered by doubts as to when the dish is done. She cannot see inside of the bag and she can open it only to destroy the benefits that are to be obtained only by the closed bag, but if she wishes to see whether the dish is properly cooked it is easy to press gently on the bag and feel whether the meat or fish is thoroughly tender.

The cooking of our food in the paper bag is not new. The present idea, without doubt, grew out of the old and familiar method of cooking on papillotes. But the difference between these dishes on papillotes and the latest idea of cooking in bags is that, as a rule, most of the old dishes were prepared and sometimes half cooked before they were put into the paper. Of course, this was therefore a matter for the chef and many assistants, who desired to attain a certain flavor, rather than a device to save labor. In older times our forefathers used to cook their game and fruits wrapped in leaves and parchment, and we ourselves, when camping, frequently wrap a bird in a piece of old linen, then in coarse brown paper, and roast it on the ashes of the camp fire. Now the idea is brought into the home and made practical. All that is necessary is an oven, a gridiron and a paper bag.

The bag, firmly fastened at the bottom and up the sides keeps in all the small of cookery, all the albumen of the food, and prevents loss of weight in roasting. In either roasting or baking, beef loses 25 per cent of its weight when cooked by the ordinary methods in the paper bag, however, it loses none of its weight and no particles of its essence.

When the food is taken from the bag a small quantity of concentrated gravy first rolls out, and it is the purest and best broth that can be imagined. The time that the gas oven has been in use for preparing the meal is reduced by at least one-third. There is not the faintest trace of odors from the kitchen, not even in the case of vegetables, which sometimes smell rather strongly, as cauliflower for instance.

The paper bag system notably allows freedom from grease. Many dishes which are too rich for the digestion when cooked in the usual way may be put into a paper bag with no more butter than is necessary to grease the bag, and will be found to have gained in savor and delicacy of taste, while so completely free from grease that they will not disagree with the most delicate digestion. Furthermore, there is no scrubbing out of a greasy oven, with dripping clinging to its sides; no washing out of dripping pan or baking dish. A spotlessly clean oven is left, and when the bags have been burned up and the dishes washed the cook's labors with the finished meal are over.

Many housekeepers have discovered how to freeze and reheat bread by wrapping it in a paper bag. Biscuits that have been cooked for twenty-four hours, while having lost only one per cent of one-half per cent of moisture by evaporation, are nevertheless dry. Their crusts are brittle, though the heart will be moist. If the moisture can be redistributed the biscuits will be as good as new when first baked. Nothing will accomplish this redistribution as well as paper wrapping.

Stoups cannot be cooked in bags, as the expansion caused by evaporation bursts the paper. Vegetables and desserts give varying success, some turning out to perfection and others proving less palatable than when cooked in the pan. But eggs in every style, fish, entrees and roasts are always delicious, and it is here that the epicurean though frugal housekeeper will reap the many profits of paper bag cookery.

OLD SOL WILL MAKE BRIEF VISIT FRIDAY

Scarcely Eight Hours and a Half Between Sunrise and Sunset Tomorrow.

Friday is to be the shortest day of all the year and the beginning of winter, according to the chronology keepers, though the fact, in respect to the length of the day, will be scarcely apparent to the ordinary observer. In truth, it is a matter of absolute distinction for the common mortal to draw the line, for since December 6 the sun has not set earlier than 4:10 and since December 15 it has changed its recent habit and has been retiring later and later and on Friday the moment of its disappearance will be 4:19 o'clock, fully three minutes later than a week before. But, on the other hand, the late rising habit will not end on the shortest day, but will continue until the second week in January, when the course will change and after that the lengthening process will proceed at both ends of the day.

From the rising to the setting of Old Sol will be eight hours and 41 minutes on Friday, when he will appear above the eastern horizon at 7:28 a. m., and withdraw his face at exactly 4:19 p. m., and winter will begin.

It is scarcely believable that the reign of the stormy king is upon us, so delightful has been the weather during the past two weeks, and if the record is kept up until day after tomorrow "well be a glorious beginning. Scarcely has a ice frozen upon the lakes, the temperature hovers just below the freezing point at night and the days are warm, balmy and spring-like, and there is no mantle of snow on old earth. Reports come from the country that farmers are turning the stubborn globe and nothing gives assurance that winter is upon us.

Winter comes, however, when the earth reaches the winter solstice and there is no way to thwart the designs of the calendar makers. In its mad rush around its elliptical orbit the sun and earth, twice every astronomical year, reach points which mark respectively the longest and shortest distance of the earth from the sun. These points represent the turning points of the four seasons, the vernal equinox and the autumnal equinox, when day and night are of equal length, the summer solstice, when day is longest and the night shortest, and the winter solstice, when the day is shortest and the night longest. On the southern hemisphere the order is reversed, and while December 21 usually marks the shortest day of the year on the northern hemisphere, on the southern hemisphere it marks the longest of the year and the beginning of the astronomical summer. The time is not, however, on the two axes, and it may fall a day sooner or a day later, as it does this season.

The ancient Greeks called the period, including the seven days preceding and the seven days following the shortest day of the year, "the halcyon days." This phrase is derived from the myth that during this period, while the kingfisher or halcyon bird was brooding, the sea was always calm. According to poetic fiction, the bird was represented as hatching its eggs in a floating nest in the midst of the waters.

“SELL MORE SEALS” MOTTO OF CAMPAIGN

Efforts of Local Campaign Managers Will be Redoubled During Remaining Few Days.

"Sell More Seals" is now the motto of the managers of the Red Cross Christmas seal sale in this city and efforts will be redoubled during the last few days which remain to make the sale in Janesville a record-breaker.

"It is our aim to have the stamps in every home in the city and it is hoped that there will not be a Christmas package which will not bear from one to a dozen of the Red Cross stamps," said Miss Helen Vlynn who has charge of the work this season.

It is pointed out that this campaign is in the nature of a human missionary movement which will affect every part of the state so far reaching is the work of the Anti-Tuberculosis Association. In regard to the work which has been done President Van Hise of the state university has made the following statement:

"The problem of conserving the vitality of our people, of eliminating preventable deaths and diseases, is a large part of the problem of conserving national efficiency," writes Dr. Van Hise.

"Perhaps no other agency has done more during the past three years to arouse the people of Wisconsin to the need of securing good hygienic conditions in the homes and communities of the state than the joint work conducted by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association and the United Extension Division.

by this agency has commanded popular support to a remarkable degree because of the havoc of tuberculosis and because it is becoming appreciated that the methods of living which protect the individual and the community against tuberculosis are equally effective against a number of kindred diseases. The campaign against tuberculosis has emphasized in a striking way the value of clean living, pure, fresh air, sunlight, and wholesome food.

"It should not be forgotten that this important work depends entirely for its support on the money obtained from the purchase of Red Cross seals by those interested in physical improvement of the race."

A Wise Watch-Word — "Wilburbuds"

And truly a watch-word is this name for chocolate in its daintiest conceivable form and flavor. Say "Wilburbuds" to your dealer, and he will know your demand is for those meltingly smooth embodiments of chocolate purity—

WILBUR'S CHOCOLATE BUDS

Say merely "Buds" and your dealer may think you're content with one of the many common kinds of chocolate sold in the shape of "Wilburbuds"—but lacking utterly the quality of the genuine.

FOR YOUR PROTECTION, Wilbur's Buds are put up in boxes in four sizes: 10c, 25c, half-pound and one pound. If your dealer hasn't them, simply write us. We will send more than a pound box for a dollar—a trial box for 50 cents.

Other famous Wilbur creations are: Wilbur's Cocoa—Velour and American Milk Chocolate (Eating Chocolate) and Dessert Chocolate—All with Wilbur flavor.

"CAN YOU TELL ME HOW FAR IT IS TO DOOGANVILLE?"

"NIGH' BOUT TEN MILES, BUT THEM THINGS GOES SO FAST I RECKON YER CAN MAKE IT LESS'N THAT."

"HAVE YOU BEEN ANYTHING FOR THE GOOD OF THE COMMUNITY?"

"YES, I'VE JUST DONE A MONTH."

A Stock Story.

"When I was a barefoot lad," said Dr. Dustin Stutz, "I had to spend a good deal of time minding the stock on father's farm. I'll never forget the day when father told me to take a rope and hold a couple of bull calves."

"What did they do?"

"The scorching my hands with the rope and then turned around and stepped on me."

"Unusually disposition?"

"No. Wonderful instinct. They recognized me at a glance as a small stockholder."

The Natural Result.

"The carpet manufacturer was at a natural disadvantage in the debating class," he joined.

"Why so?"

"Because every time they had a discussion he was floored."

Quite Likely.

A poet says he's ready for winter. "Let it come!" He must have hit the janitor to make the furnace hum.

THEN HE FLEW.

A gentleman who was anxious to catch a train hailed a hansom, gave instructions as to the station to be driven to, and jumped in, but the horse made terribly slow progress and every second made the fare think that he would miss his train.

At length he addressed Jehu:

"Look here, cabman," he said, "can you make your horse go faster? I wish to catch the 3:45 train."

The cabman winked knowingly and replied:

"Yes, sir; he can go faster. But it's like this, sir. My horse is an old race horse, and the best way to make him go faster is for you to bet me half a crown he won't catch the 3:45. That'll put him on his mettle directly he hears it and he'll fly like the wind."

The cabman won the half crown.—London Tit-Bits.

An Encouraging Fact.

Katherine, twenty-five, charming and popular, remarked in the presence of a number of friends that when she became betrothed the engagement ring would be a matter of very small interest to her.

"Indeed, I shouldn't really care whether I had a solitaire diamond or not," she said. "I'm not at all fond of diamonds, and I don't like to wear rings."

"You'd better let that be known, Kate," said her fifteen-year-old brother. "It might help some."—Youth's Companion.

A Suspicion.

"I declare," said Mrs. Chinross, after making a round of calls, "all those butlers have unpured baseball games."

"Impolite?"

"No. Polite, but positive. They seem to have gotten into the habit of saying everybody is out."

Airy Raiment.

Since little Paul wrote his composition on snow, his mother hopes that he may be a poet.

"I don't really know what snow is," he began, "but I think it may be air with clothes on."—Youth's Companion.

Took Precautions.

Mrs. Brown was thinking of giving up using fresh milk. I read an article in the paper saying all kinds of infection can be got from it."

Milkman—Don't worry, madam; our water is always well boiled first.—London Sketch.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Gazette, Dec. 21, 1871.—A despatch from Montemorelos, Mexico, says that both at that place and at Brownville, American intervention in the Mexican Civil war is confidently anticipated. The Texas representatives in Congress are requested to favor it.

Jefferson is enforcing an ordinance prohibiting gambling.

The La Crosse Democrat says that Joseph Ellwell, special United States mail agent, has traveled 35,000 miles since the first of last January.

The ladies of Jefferson have formed a society to promote the cause of temperance there.

Nearly two and one-half million dollars in cash have been received by the society for the relief of those who suffered by the Chicago fire.

The thermometer indicated 14 degrees below zero at seven o'clock this morning and 15 above at two o'clock p. m.

The city schools have been closed until the 8th of January. The cold snap has necessitated an anticipation of the event as it is impossible to make the buildings comfortable.

A meeting of the board of trade was held last night to consider the subject of building railroads between Evansville and this city, and Afton and this city. The matter was discussed at length and the board finally decided to call a meeting of the citizens, so it would be presented and action requested. The meeting will probably be next Tuesday.

The thermometer had a shivering spell last night but is rapidly rallying from its depressed condition. At half past four o'clock yesterday afternoon, the mercury scored five degrees below zero; at eight o'clock p. m., twenty below; at eleven p. m., twenty-one below; and at seven o'clock a. m., fourteen below. This afternoon its pulse is more rapid and it is thought that with careful nursing it will recover.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams

BY WALT MASON

That men may have an equal chance, that justice may endure, let's take the money from the rich, and give it to the poor. Let men like Morganholm be stripped of all their store.

THE GREAT pod of all their store SCHEME—of dough, distribute it among the men who cannot make things go. Utopia would then be here—perhaps for half a year—and we might send up songs of praise, and dry the scolding tear, but in six months or maybe less the same old Morganholm would have their iron clutches on the world's supply of dough; and you would on the corners see the same old shuffling man, insisting that the plutocrats should now be stripped again. Oh, some are born to nail the scabs and put them down in brine, and some are born to hold the sack and stand around and whine. And some are born to do their best, to bale their stack of hay, contented with a modest roll against a rainy day; they do not mind the hands of their cheap sackcloth on their backs, they do not care for the grand old loushous-plutocrats; they do not ask for wealth when well; they work for what they get, and say the world's a bully place, and dance and proudest.

Back to the Scrap Pile.

"I understand that car of Juggernaut has been put out of business in India." "Yes," replied the chauffeur. "As soon as the people found it wasn't a 1912 model the people wouldn't stand for it."

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

Fashion.

By Howard L. Rann.

Fashion is a hypnotic influence which is felt, but rarely seen. It is felt mainly in the region of the cheek book by husbands who couldn't tell a sleuth gown from a Mother Hubbard.

The degrees of fashion change faster than parties in a square dance. It has subjected the noble and the plebeian alike to impulsive levity and has developed a figure which is about as sane as a clutch. It is considered as vulgar nowadays to wear hips in public as it used to be to chew gum at the opera. This mode has its compensations, however. For a few hundred dollars a good dressmaker can clamp a stout woman into a gown that makes her look like Camille in the last act, and as most of our society leaders are long on unimportant style it is likely to remain with us for quite a while. Fashion is no respecter of incomes, either. It is no more trouble for her to go through a $50,000 income than it is to sport a mellow dent in a salary of $12 a week. Whenever business is dull, fashion invents a hat that looks like an inverted grape basket, pastes a French label on it and extracts a price that is calculated to make the average husband soothe stars for a week. As a rule, however, fashion is very moderate in her charges. For $32 you can get a modest little toque with fully 60 cents' worth of material in it, not counting the labor and the pins, while a pair of those shirred willow plumes, which hang over a woman's right ear like a snail's foot on the bridge, rarely costs more than a rim about. Yet every little while some brutal husband and father, with four daughters who have never succeeded in looking anybody into the ring service, lets go of a profane rant about the high cost of living. Man is an unreasonable being.

Practical Domestic Science.

"What is this domestic science?" inquired the engaged girl. "It consists of making hash out of the leftover meat and croquettes out of the leftover hash," explained her more experienced friend.—Pittsburgh Post.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

THE FINEST TOMB IN THE WORLD.

By A. W. MACY.

The most magnificent mausoleum in the world is at Agra, India. It was built by Emperor Shah Jehan, in the seventeenth century, in honor of his favorite queen. It is built entirely of marble and brick, and is adorned internally with exquisite mosaics of precious stones. The total cost was more than $15,000,000. Twenty-two thousand men, driven like slaves, labored for seventeen years, through tropical rains and torrid summer heat, to erect this marvelous tomb. Hundreds of them perished, but others took their places. The cost was so great that the revenues were depleted; and the people rose in rebellion. The emperor's son usurped the throne, and during the last seven years of his life the emperor looked out upon the splendid mausoleum from a prison window. He was not allowed to enter it while living, but now his body rests beneath its dome.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN

Food Specialist

PRESCRIBING OF FOODS.

A writer in the Journal of the American Medical association says that as drugs are carefully prescribed in quantity and with reference to their known effects so should foods be prescribed for the sick, not only in diabetes, rheumatism and other ailments in which dietetic treatment is acknowledged, but in all cases. The coming generation of medical men, he says, will be better qualified to do this, since the importance of dietetic treatment is being more generally recognized.
